FUTURE VISIONS @ ATHENS

New Urbanity & New Architecture

City as a Place of Social Development

Studio aims to look for the new, future modes of metropolitan life and their visionary architectural projections... supporting cultural/man-made and natural environments. It will especially concentrate on housing, work space, public spaces and their hybrid constructions... And the driving forces of these projections – future visions – will be the challenging positions, border-line situations of Athens and the visionary imaginations of the designer. For these purposes, Studio will concentrate on the 'edge conditions / border-line situations' – as critical and creative positions – of Athens and the specific sites in addition to the imaginative abilities of the architecture student... to be able to open up their intervals. To do that it will be necessary to get close, involve, de-code / de-compose and represent these critical lines, positions, and places – their actors / elements, connections, interactions, meaning and structures – to be able to re-construct, design them.

*There will be an excursion to Athens between March 2nd-5th, 2017.
